COMPLAINT ALLEGATION SUMMARY:

Eos Energy designs, manufactures, and markets zinc-based battery energy storage systems for commercial and industrial applications. The company said to have highly efficient manufacturing systems, thanks to its implementation of a fully automated battery manufacturing line.

The complaint alleges that, throughout the Class Period, Defendants made materially false and/or misleading statements, as well as failed to disclose material facts about the company's business, operations, and prospects. Specifically, Defendants misrepresented and/or failed to disclose that: (1) Eos Energy was unable to achieve the increased production and capacity utilization that it needed to meet its previously set guidance; (2) the company's battery line downtime was operating well above industry norms, its design intent, and internal forecasts; (3) Eos Energy was experiencing delays in its ability to hit quality targets for its automated bipolar production; (4) the company lacked adequate systems and processes to ensure reasonably accurate, complete, and timely disclosures; and (5) as a result of the foregoing, Defendants' statements about the company's business, operations, and prospects were materially false and misleading and/or lacked a reasonable basis at all relevant times.

WHY DID EOS ENERGY'S STOCK DROP?

On February 26, 2026, Eos Energy announced that certain "issues prevented us from delivering our commitments," resulting in the company falling short on its revenue guidance, and a "net loss attributable to shareholders of $969.6 million." On this news, Eos Energy's stock price fell 39.4%.

THE LEAD PLAINTIFF PROCESS:

The Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 permits any investor who purchased or acquired Eos Energy securities during the Class Period to seek appointment as lead plaintiff in the Eos Energy class action lawsuit. A lead plaintiff is a representative party that acts on behalf of other class members in directing the litigation. In order to be appointed lead plaintiff, the Court must determine that the class member's claim is typical of the claims of other class members, and that the class member will adequately represent the class. Your ability to share in any recovery is not, however, affected by the decision whether or not to serve as a lead plaintiff. Filling out the online form above or communicating with any counsel is not necessary to participate or share in any recovery achieved in this case. Any member of the purported class may move the court to serve as a lead plaintiff through counsel of his/her choice, or may choose to do nothing and remain an inactive class member.
